

Drugs and Mental Health

What are drugs?

A medicine or other substance which has a physiological effect when ingested or otherwise introduced into the body

There are many reasons why a person may begin using drugs, some of these include:

- Curiosity
- Rebellion
- Influence from others
- Medical Reasons
- Coping Mechanism

Drugs that are psychoactive, such as cannabis, alcohol, ecstasy and heroin, have the ability to affect your mood.

They can arouse certain emotions or dampen down others, this may be why people use them.

The changes in your mood or behaviour caused by drugs are the result of changes to your brain. This is also the part of you that controls your mental health.

Short term effects of drug abuse

- Mood swings
- Sleep problems
- Risk taking behaviour
- Harmful changes in appetite
- Panic attacks
- Drug induced psychosis (delusions or hallucinations)
- Drug induced mood disorder

Long term effects of drug abuse

- Dual diagnosis (mental health problem and drug addiction)
- Can cause cancer
- Kidney and liver damage or disease
- Dependence
- Addiction
- Debt
- Depression
- Neurological damage
- Death

The mental health problems that most often occur with drug misuse are depression, schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, anxiety disorder and attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD).

Take 5 Steps for Wellbeing

The Take 5 Steps for wellbeing are an evidenced based way to promote mental health.

Do something nice for a friend. Smile. Volunteer your time and help your club.

Surround yourself with Family, friends or teammates. Good connections will help you feel supported.

Don't be afraid to try something new. Take up a hobby and something you enjoy and learn a new skill.

Exercise acts as an anti-depressant. Being active is good for your mental health and physical health.

Be aware of the world around you and how you are feeling. Take a step back, breath and take a time out.
