Anti-Bullying & Mental Health

Recognise it. Report it. Respond safely. Review until it stops.

WHAT IS IT?

Bullying-type behaviour is usually targeted, repeated and intended to cause harm. It involves an imbalance of power.

It may be verbal, physical, social, written or online—and can include deliberate exclusion.

Not every disagreement or one-off unkind act is bullying, but harm still needs action. 'Banter' stops being banter when someone is hurt, targeted or unable to opt out.

Emotions & confidence

They may feel anxious, ashamed, angry, lonely, unsafe or less confident in themselves.

Belonging & trust

Exclusion, rumours or humiliation can damage friendships, trust and a sense of belonging.

Body & wellbeing

Stress may show as headaches, stomach aches, poor sleep, tiredness or changes in appetite.

Participation & performance

They may avoid training, lose enjoyment, struggle to focus or consider leaving the club.

Safety & mental health

Severe or ongoing harm can contribute to low mood, self-harm or thoughts of suicide.

A coach notices and supports—a coach does not diagnose.

5 WAYS TO SUPPORT SOMEONE

01 Listen, believe and reassure

Give them time to explain without interrupting or questioning their version.

Say clearly: "This is not your fault. You did the right thing by telling me."

02 Make them safe immediately

Stop the behaviour calmly, separate those involved and check for physical or emotional harm.

Provide a trusted adult, safe place or supportive teammate—but do not punish the person being bullied by removing them from their team.

03 Record and report every incident

Write down dates, locations, behaviour, witnesses and actions taken. Keep screenshots of online bullying before blocking and reporting it.

Follow the club's safeguarding procedures and involve the safeguarding lead, school or parent/carer as appropriate

04 Agree a plan with the person

Ask: "What would help you feel safe?" Agree who they can approach, where they can go and what adults will do if it happens again.

Do not force an immediate apology, confrontation or mediation—the person may feel intimidated or blamed.

05 Keep checking in and rebuild belonging

Bullying rarely ends through one conversation. Arrange regular check-ins, connect them with supportive teammates and make sure they remain included in activities.

Feeling cared for and connected to trusted adults and peers protects mental health and increases help-seeking.
